LA GEAR

Spring is in bloom at Tenoversix's new Miami store.

After 10 years on Melrose Place, OG concept store Tenoversix is swapping coasts, trading LA for a new sunlit Miami shop. Co-founder and creative director Kristen Lee Cole brings her blend of contemporary art, fashion, and design to the emerging Little River neighborhood, just a hop from Wynwood and the Design District. Cop the latest garb from It labels Eckhaus Latta and Walk of Shame, or indie-girl favorites like Rachel Comey, Simon Miller and Maryam Nassir Zadeh. The boutique is (of course) also Insta-ready: terrazzo floors, neon lighting, plants, ceramics and '70s-inspired furniture.

If it ain't baroque, don't fix it. Dolce & Gabbana's just-opened Design District boutique takes that adage to heart, with decor that channels the famous Teatro alla Scala opera house in Milan. Behind an undulating, doubleheight glass facade, grand travertine takes center stage, alongside gilded mirrors and walnut furniture embellished with gold velvet. Italian-crafted classical sculptures watch over D&G's latest men's and women's ready-to-wear and accessories collections, as well

Dolce & Gabbana's spring 2018 looks are available at its new Design District shop.

DECO DIVA

Alice + Olivia by Stacey Bendet is going big in Miami, with a striking new two-story Design District flagship (above). Interiors expert Robert Couturier looked to 1930s designs by Jean-Michel Frank (the Rockefellers' famous French decorator) for inspiration, resulting in a color palette of black and white with pops of gold; a dramatic colonnade of 30-foot-tall white-plaster drapes; and a Thassos marble staircase. Try on the girly-girl brand's latest ready-to-wear, gowns, shoes and accessories as well as jeans from its new AO.LA by Alice + Olivia line. Denim and deco? Jazz hands optional.

BRING the pool party with you in Orlebar Brown's new line of cheeky-chic trunks, printed with vacay-inspo snaps by iconic photographer Slim Aarons. Their dreamy vistas will transport you from the midcentury splash decks of Palm Springs to the glamorous beach clubs of Monte Carlo. Founder Adam Brown is also making waves in South Florida, launching a new Palm Beach shop to join OB's Brickell City Centre digs, with two more Miami outposts arriving later this year. "Florida epitomizes the spirit of 'Feel Summer,' with sunshine all year-round," Brown tells Alexa. "Its bright and vibrant cultural influences make it a natural home for us." Swim on.

5 QUESTIONS

WITH DEVELOPER VLADISLAV DORONIN

As head of both OKO Group and Aman Resorts, you have a portfolio of 71 international projects - and you're developing two luxury condos in Miami for the first time. Why now? I have a home in Miami, and over the years, I have seen how the city has changed. Brickell has become a happening neighborhood, and I see the same pattern in Edgewater and the Design District. What makes your forthcoming towers, Una in Brickell and Missoni Baia in Edgewater, stand out? Amenities like the elevated tennis court at Missoni Baia and the private marina at Una. Plus, there are multiple pools at each tower. Both will also have access to the exclusive Grand Bay Club in Key Biscayne, where residents will be able to enjoy kite-surfing, Jet Ski-ing and a range of other water-based activities. Una's interiors are inspired by those of a yacht. Do you spend time on the water? I have two boats, a Riva Domino and a Wider 42. I like to spend my weekends on my boats and sometimes sail out to the Bahamas. How often are you in Miami? I fly between the US, Europe and Asia, but I try to make it back as many weekends as possible, especially in the winter and spring. A few days in Miami and I feel refreshed, relaxed and happy. What's your favorite slice of the city? Biscayne Bay is my favorite. I take my boat to Key Biscayne or out onto the ocean and spend the day with my friends and family, spotting dolphins and manatees. — Christopher Cameron
