Long gone are the days when developers paid scant attention to the art in their residential projects. "The signature art collection at Brickell Flatiron complements the building's timeless elegance and sophisticated Italian style," says Developer Ugo Colombo, Founder of CMC Group. "We've spared no detail or expense to deliver a memorable product for our residents, offering the highest caliber of quality and design that will withstand the test of time." The privately commissioned permanent collection features a series of exclusively produced large-scale paintings and sculptures by New York artist Julian Schnabel, as well as signature pieces by Italian artist Carlos Battaglia and Italian photographer Marco Glaviano, which are displayed throughout the 64-story building's grand lobby and public amenity spaces. Works by Battaglia and Glaviano add to Brickell Flatiron's Italian sophistication and are complemented by the building's sleek interiors and custom-designed furnishings created by Italian design architect Massimo Iosa Ghini. The collection takes haute living to a whole new level; BrickellFlatiron.com.
